MISS PHIPPINS' PACKET.

Mr. Wardlaw gave me such a cool reception when I laid before him the state of my feelings with regard to his daughter Effie, that I suspended my visits to her.

Not that I intended to give her up by any means; for a few years' hard work and close application, I firmly believed, would place me on a footing to meet even Silas Wardlaw's worldly minded scruples.

I remembered how Jacob had toiled his way to a wife—two of them, in fact—and, animated by the example, I was bending every energy to win one superior to them both, when one day a piece of news came that pointed out a shorter cut to happiness.

By the death of a distant relative I had come in for a legacy of fifty thousand dollars and could have the money, so the letter said, any time I called for it.

I kept my good luck a secret—at least, told nobody but my landlady, Mrs. Trevit, she promising not to whisper it.

The executor who had the money lived in a town some miles distant.

I could easily ride there and back in a day, and resolved to start on the following morning; Mrs. Trivet kindly offering, for greater safety, to fix a button to my inside breast-pocket, a service of which I thankfully availed myself.

The journey, till I had nearly reached home again, was without incident worthy of recital.

The executor, after taking my receipt, had promptly handed me the crisp notes, which I carefully bestowed in the pocket secured by Mrs. Trivet's button.

The last few miles of the road lay along the margin of a river, and it was here, just as the sun was going down, that my thoughts were interrupted by a piercing shriek, followed by loud cries for help.

Springing from my horse, and fastening the rein quickly to a branch, I ran to the spot whence the sounds proceeded.

Mr. Tagax, an old gentleman recently come to lodge at Mrs. Trivet's, stood on the river's bank calling wildly for assistance.

"For Heaven's sake, save her!" he appealed, as I reached the spot. "I know not who she is; I was sitting here reading when I heard her outcry."

A glance explained the situation.

A young and singularly beautiful woman was struggling in the water, in momentary peril of being swept beyond the reach of help.

I was on the point of plunging to her rescue, when Mr. Tagax caught my arm, and said, "You'll endanger your own life if you venture in with all your clothing."

I felt the force of the suggestion, and throwing my coat to Mr. Tagax, leaped into the river.

A few strokes brought me in reach of the imperilled lady, who was apparently fast sinking.

Catching one of her wrists, I placed her hand on my shoulder, and bidding her keep it there, started to swim to the shore.

She followed my instructions with singular presence of mind, and in less than a minute we stood safely on the bank.

I looked round for Mr. Tagax, but he was nowhere to be seen.

My coat, too, with the fifty thousand dollars in the pocket, was equally invisible.

I uttered a half-suppressed exclamation, and was about to leave the rescued lady to herself, and start on a wild search for my missing property, when I bethought me that most likely Mr. Tagax, in his excitement, had run to call additional help, carrying my coat along with him.

Doubtless both would turnd up in good season.

Miss Philyra Phippins—that was the name the young lady gave me—was residing, she said, for the summer, in the neighborhood; and while taking her favorite walk that evening, she had stopped to pluck a wild flower on the river bank, and catching her foot, had tripped and fallen over.

I hurried home, hoping to find Mr. Tagax with my coat there before me; but, to my chagrin, he had not yet returned.

I retraced the way to the scene of the accident, but he was nowhere to be found, nor could I discover anyone who had seen him since early in the afternoon.

I hurried back to Mrs. Trivet's, but still he had not returned.

I looked for him in all sorts of likely and unlikely places, but could get trace of him in none.

At last the truth dawned upon me painfully that I had been robbed, and that Mr. Tagax, in spite of his venerable looks, was no better than he should be.

To make a long story short, I saw no more of Mr. Tagax.

From the executor, who was a methodical man of business, I obtained the numbers of the notes he had paid me, of which I at once advertised a full description, offering a reward for their restoration.

In my trouble, I did not forget to call on Miss Phippins, who was not only lavish in her thanks, but profuse in expressions of sympathy for my loss, while her reprobation of the villian that had caused it was even greater than my own.

One day I happened to mention to her that business would call me to the town on the morrow.

"Might I trouble you with a little commission?" she asked.

"I shall esteem it a pleasure, not a trouble," I replied.

Excusing herself, she returned, after a brief absence, with a sealed packet in her hand.

"Here are some papers I wish delivered to my guardian," she said. "You'll find his address on the envelope."

Promising to see them safely in hand I took a cordial leave, receiving a pressing invitation to call on my return.

Next morning found me in the early train.

At the end of a couple of hours we stopped for refreshments.

In getting at my pocketbook I took out Miss Phippins' packet, and held it an instant in my hand.

"This way a moment, if you please," said a man, who, drawing my arm in his, led me to a private room, and said, "I am a detective. I saw a packet in your possession just now, the address on which attracted my attention. Permit me to look at it."

I placed it in his hand.

Without a word, he began to rip it open.

"Stop!" I exclaimed, indignantly. "That was entrusted to me by a lady, and I cannot suffer it to be tampered with."

The answer was a peculiar smile as the man proceeded with his work, and drew from the envelope a bundle, not of papers, but of bank-notes, which he and his companion inspected eagerly.

"A young man was robbed of these lately—at least, they bear the advertised numbers," remarked the detective.

"And it was I who was robbed of them!" I exclaimed, as my eyes followed his.

The two laughed incredulously.

"There is a gentleman in this place who knows me," I replied.

And I gave his name.

My friend was sent for, and at once identified me.

"Oho!—it's plain enough now!" said the detective, when I had told my story. "Mr. Tagax and Miss Philyra Phippins are only aliases for two of a nortorious band of thieves. The former, most likely through the indiscretion of your landlady, became aware that you were about to receive a sum of money, and probably had his eyes open when she sewed on the button; and the drowning scene was all a preconcerted trick. Not caring to have the money about him in case of capture, Mr. Tagax managed to convey it to Miss Philyra the same night; and she afterwards took the bold course of making you the messenger to lodge it safely in the hands of the accomplished rascal who acts as banker for the gang."

The two officers returned with me in the hope of meeting the fair Philyra, but the pretty bird had already flown.

Now that I was prepared to renew negotiations on a cash basis, I found Mr. Wardlaw quite an altered man.

As for Effie—bless her faithful heart!—I was all the same to her, fortune or no fortune.

WHAT THE DISEASE WAS.

Dumley came into the dining-room and casting a sweeping glance over the table, jammed down into his chair and muttered under his breath:

"Liver again, of course. We've had liver every morning for two weeks."

"What's the matter, Mr. Dumley?" asked the landlady; "arn't you feeling well this morning?"

"No, madam," he replied, shortly, "I am suffering with liver complaint."

THE DIFFERENCE.

New York Broker—"No, dear, I cannot take you to Saratoga this year."

His Wife—"You can't, indeed? I should like to know why."

"I can't afford it."

"The idea! Why, the Simpersins are going to Newport just the same as usual, and Simpersin has failed, too."

"Exactly my dear, and I haven't."

"Well?"

"Why, I have to stay at home and pay my debts."

"Maybe you write songs, too," suggested the newspaper man.

"Yes; sometimes," was the answer.

"Have you got one for me?"

"Yes, I think I have."

"Is it sung by long or short metre?"

By this time the young man had fished out a document, which he threw down, yelling excitedly:

"Neither, my friend, it is sung by the gas metre.

It was a gas bill for $10.

MR. VANDERBILT'S VIEWS.

He Discusses the Causes of the Recent Panic.

"Making Money Too Fast"—Overdoing Business—Building Unnecessary Roads—Floating Worthless Securities—A Cheerful Outlook.

'I had a pleasant though not speedy voyage across in the Baltic,' said Mr. Vanderbilt, 'and received a number of dispatches at Queenstown and others at Liverpool concerning the financial troubles in New York. After reading and considering these and studying the news given in the papers I was not at all surprised at what had happened.

'It was merely the result of overdoing business. Trust companies and other moneyed interests have for a long time past loaned large amounts of surplus money to build the railroads and float bonds and other securities that were not needed by the country. The people in the United States have for some years been making money too fast. They have not stopped to see what value they were getting, but a large class in the community have, as a rule, and in many cases familiar to us, all made large amounts by placing on the market securities which in ordinary times would be considered worthless.

'I hope,' said Mr. Vanderbilt, 'we shall all profit by it, and that in the future our money institutions will keep themselves within the law and be careful what securities they deal in. We have seen railroad men, bankers and others controlling large amounts of money not only loaning their credit to these things, but asking from others encouragement and aid for what any thinking man well knew was not needed.

'We have seen moneyed men use the means of institutions with which they happened to be connected for their own benefit, and now the day of judgemnet has come home to them. All sorts of schemes are used and fail, one after another, to bolster up unsound projects, and the innocent shareholder who has already been swindled out of large sums is made to believe that a little further aid will bring it all back.

'I must not be understood as saying,' Mr. Vanderbilt added, 'or as meaning that there are no good things left. There are plenty of them, but investors should use more judgement in their investments. The truth is, people want to make money too fast. There is hardly a good dividend paying investment that is not sound. The one thing needful in many cases is to get honest men to administer them, and not men who want to make a fortune every year personally in stock speculations.

'If the people owning property would look more to the character of the men employed to govern it, we should not so often as we do hear of these panics. I hope now the financial scare has been sufficiently great to enable those who have survived to know the difference between a good thing and a bad one. Confidence in good things is all that is wanted. It is only the confidence given to bad ones that destroys the good.

'No one regrets more than myself,' Mr. Vanderbilt said, 'the existence of these disturbances, inasmuch as so many innocent people must of necessity suffer. Every one has his own ideas of the causes of such calamities. I have given you my views. If they lead any one to reflect before action, I shall have been fully repaid for the expression of my thoughts. I hope all will go well, and though the storm has had a large sweep and carried much before it, I have not yet made up my mind to abandon hope for the future. I feel sure that a sound recovery is not far ahead of us. It will surely come."

A MATCH.

Mr. Clewdrop was slowly walking down Alabama street when he saw one of his friends wildly striding toward him.

"What is your hurry?" asked Mr. C., catching him by the coat.

"Don't stop me!" yelled the other, struggling to get free, "turn me loose."

"Anything wrong?" gasped Clewdrop.

"No, no, but let me go."

"What are you rushing so for?"

"Oh, hang it I'm walking for a match."

"If that's all," smiled Clewdrop, feeling in his vest pocket, "I can give you one without your walking yourself to death for a match."

THE CLANS GATHERING.

"Where is the bar?" asked a gentleman, hurriedly, as he registered at a Chicago hotel.

"Just around to the left, sir."

"Where is the bar?" asked another gentleman, at the same place a moment later.

"Where is the ba——"

"Just around to the left, sir. By Jove," the clerk continued, "the delegates are beginning to come in.'

Starting a Newspaper.

Did you ever start a paper? No? Well, you ought to try it. Falling down stairs with a stove on top of you is nothing to be compared to it in point of excitement. The name of the paper was the Review, and it was started to 'fill a long-felt want.' Jerry Cochrane was my partner. There were several very comfortable things about that paper. For instance, Jerry and I always knew on Monday that we wouldn't have enough money to pay the hands off on Saturday, and we never did. The hands knew it, too, and so their nerves were never shocked by a disappointment. We ran that way for awhile, getting more deeply into debt all the time. At last, one morning, I entered the office and found Jerry looking rather solemn. 'Jerry,' says I, 'you want a partner.' 'Yes, we need a new one, Bob,' he rejoined. 'A business man,' said he. 'A financier,' I observed. 'A man who can take hold of the thing and turn it into money,' he concluded. 'Then I'll get the man you want,' I said, and introduced Frank Hitchcock, the Sheriff. Jerry said Frank was the very man he had been thinking of, so we installed him at once, sir. He ran the paper with the greatest success until he had turned it entirely into money.

When we wound up the concern there was nothing left but two passes—one to Cincinnati and one to Burlington. We divided them, and went in different directions.

'I got to Burlington feeling pretty bad. I was about 200,000 miles in debt, having managed to owe everybody I knew. I would have owed the strangers, too, only I had no way of making their acquaintance. One day I remarked to Mrs. Burdette that I'd go over and see if I couldn't get a job on the Hawkeye. I postponed it for awhile and one day the business manager came over to offer me a place. I could have hugged the man, but I didn't want to be demonstrative, so I held back rather coyly. He asked me if I had anything in view, and I told him I had. It was the truth, as I had an idea of going out to the poorhouse, if I could get a ride on the cars; I was too proud to walk. Well, he urged me, and I finally agreed to take the matter into consideration. I was to go in at 6 o'clock the next afternoon, and I bid him a chilly good day. For fear I'd miss the train, I was down there at a quarter to four, but when I entered the Hawkeye office I walked in like a lord and called the business manager 'Charley' slapping him familiarly on the back. I tell you his offering the place gave me a great moral advantage, and I used it, the result being that I was allowed the usual pricely salary of a reporter.

I worked along for awhile, and finally got an interest in the Hawkeye. A curious thing happened after awhile, which has caused me to laugh many a time. There was four of us on the editorial page, Frank Hatton, John F. White and John Burdette, my brother. Frank was the first one taken from that glorious band, and he became First Assistant Postmaster-General. John White followed by becoming Postmaster of Burlington, and my brother was then appointed collector in the first internal revenue district of Ohio. Frank was born in Cadiz, White in Ravenna, and my brother in Cincinnati, all in the same State. I was from Pennsylvania and didn't get anything. It takes Ohio men for offices.'—Burdette.

The Uselessness of Profanity.

'Suppose you are given to a habit of profanity,' says Prof. Swing, 'you enter into conversation with a man who never swears; in other words a gentleman. By and by you begin to perceive that he is the superior man. Your remarks have a tame, flat, feeble sound to your own ears. Your cheeks begin to burn with a sense of your friend's excellence. Your pert little oaths sound rough and coarse and vulgar, as they are. They begin to drop out of your sentences, ashamed to remain in the company of good, honest English words, until, as you discover that you are carrying on your part of the conversation without swearing you feel easier, and your intellectual stature is increased by a foot. Just observe this, my boy, and see if I am not right.

'But you will rip out some time, oh, yes, in some way you will. I know some good men—some of the best in the world—who will 'confound it,' and in New England even a deacon has been known, under a terrible strain, to 'condemn it.' But as a rule, my son, don't do it. It isn't an evidence of smartness or worldly wisdom. Any fool can swear. And a great many fools do. I, my son? Ah, if I could only gather up all the useless, uncalled-for, ineffective swears I dropped along the pathway of my life I know I would remote stumbling-blocks from many inexperienced feet, and my own heart would be lighter by a ton than it is today. But if you are going to be a fool just because other men have been, oh, my son, my son, what an awful, what a colossal, what a hopeless fool you will be.'

Health Maxims.

Nature is very much like a shiftless child who, the more he is helped the more he looks for it. The more medicine a man takes, the more he will have to take, whether it be anodyne, tonic or alterative. The thinnest veil or silk handkerchief thrown over the face while riding or walking against a cold wind is a remarkably comfortable protection.

Exercise to the extent of great fatigue does more harm than good.

A hearty meal, taken while excessively fatigued, has often destroyed health.

Chilliness of body often dampens the spirits, sours the temper and renders the whole man unlovely.

Cleanliness in all the surrounding of a family mansion pays richly in many ways, in good health, moral elevation, personal comfort, and dollars and cents besides.

Life is warmth, growth, repair and power to labor, and all these are derived from the food we eat and fluids we drink and these should be good.

Nine-tenths of the inmates of insane asylums who recover are those who are sent within a year of the first manifestation of their infirmity.

The worst cold may be promptly cured if, within twenty-four hours after it has been taken, the patient will keep warm in bed and eat little or nothing for a day or two.

In going out into a colder air keep the mouth resolutely closed, and walk briskly for a few minutes, thus preventing a chilliness which is always the precursor of a cold.

The portion of the body which most requires protection against the cold and wind is that between the shoulder blades behind, as it is at that point the lungs are attached to the body and the blood is easily chilled.

A good cleansing of the entire body with soap and warm water once a week is all the bathing the human system requires for purposes of health, in ordinary circumstances.

At every period of life, at all seasons of the year, and from the tropics to the poles, in clime and country the temperature of the human body in health is the same to a degree, that is, ninety-eight of Fahrenheit; hence we should eat in the winter mainly of warming food, such as meats, fats, oils, sugar and all the grains, farinas and starches; in summer, the fruits and berries and melons and vegetables of the field, the garden and the orchard, which cool and open and ventilate the system.

AN EMPTY TIN CAN.

Picked up by two Tramps in the Oil Regions with Startling Results.

Two tramps begged some coffee at a store in Warren, Pa. They had an old tin can, in which they said they intended to boil it. They took the coffee and went to an out-of-the-way spot near the gas works. One of them began to build a fire, and the other placed the can on the ground. Seating himself on the can, he watched his companion busying himself with the fire. When the latter was ready the tramp who had built it picked up a stone and jokingly exclaimed to the other one:

"Get up there and produce the supper!"

At the same time he tossed the stone toward his companion. It struck the can with considerable force, and instantly there was a terrible explosion. The tramp who was sitting on the can was thrown several feet in the air, and the other one was knocked down by the concussion. The latter jumped up and run away. The other one was picked up and carried to the county poorhouse. His hips and thighs and the lower part of his back were literally torn away. He at first gave his name as Robert Ellis, but on being told that he would die he said that Ellis was not his name. He then gave to the authorities another name, which is that of a member of one of the most prominent families in Pennsylvania. The authorities will not reveal it, at the request of the dying tramp.

The can which the tramps had picked up was an empty nitro glycerine can. Enough of the compound remained in it to cause the explosion as stated, only a few drops being required to prove extremely destructive. Similar explosions through the careless disposal of empty cans are not uncommon in the oil regions.

AN OLD FABLE REVISED.

"Look here, waiter," called a feeder at a city resturant, "look ot the hair I found in this turtle soup."

"Yes, I see. You have heard of that famous race between the turtle and the hare?"

"Yes. What of it?"

"Why, in this case the hair and turtle came in even."

P. GRAY MEEK, Chairman

Chicago Convention.

At the time we go to press, Friday, 11 o'clock, A. M., no news of any ballots for nominees have reached us. The Harrisburg PATRIOT in its midnight editorial, July 11, says:

The convention is still in session at this hour, midnight, and the platform as agreed on unanimously by the committee is under discussion. It is such a document as the representatives of the grand council of the democratic party ought to promulgate. It demands of the authorities those concessions to the people that the founders of the government were careful in reserve to them, and enumerates in unequivocal language the doctrines that will assure the greatest good to the greatest number. It will be adopted in the end though the discussion may be protracted several hours.

There is no noticeable change in the atitude of the candidates. Cleveland, Bayard, Randall and the others hold their relative places, though Judge Thurman's strength has been increasing. The end cannot be conjectured but there is no doubt that the issue will be satisfactory.

Supplements containing the portraits of the presidential candidates, a full account of the proceedings, together with speeches, the platform, and a concise account of the candidates, will be issued from this office immediately after the convention.

BLAINE entered congress as a poor fellow and came out a rich man. At the beginning of the war he was a strong and enthusiastic chap of thirty years. But instead of shouldering a musket he preferred to make a pile of money by purveying. As General Banks once remarked of him, "Blaine always thought more of money than of the Union."

THE temperance people held their national convention in Chicago, made their platform, and nominated senator Samuel C. Pomeroy for president and John A. Conant for vice president.

CONGRESS closed its presemt session of seven months and five days, last Monday at two o'clock. Its last work was the reduction of appropriations by $20, 589. 99, which is so much saved to the tax-payers. And it should not be forgotten, that it was a democratic congress, that accomplished the creditable work.

THE United States senate in passing over the trade dollar bill, shows how much they care tor the interests of thousands of business men, who took the trade dollars at ful value and are now compelled to sell them at a great loss.

BLAINE has two brothers and eight distant relations enjoying government offices. Logan has no less than fourteen of his kin in public service, among them one brother, five brother-in-laws and a son-in-law. At present these two gentlemen are looking out for No. 1 and want to take the fattest place themselves, provided they get the chance.

THE President waited until the last day at which the bill to restore Fitz-John Porter to the army would become a law and then vetoed it. The House however passed the bill over the President's veto. But it is not likely that the Senate will.

THE eleventh annual international picnic and agricultural exhibition of the Patrons of Husbandry of Pennsylvania, Maryland, West Virginia, New Jersey and Delaware will be held at Williams' Grove, Cumberland county, Pa., beginning on Monday, August 25th and closing Saturday, August 30th.

LETTER.

A. WALTER, ESQ., Millheim, Pa.

Dear Sir:—The undersigned, some of your neighbors and party friends in Millheim and the adjacent townships respectfully suggest, that you submit your name to the coming Democratic County Convention as a candidate for member of the legislature. Believing as they do that if nominated and elected, you would represent the people and their best interests faithfully and ably, it would afford them much pleasure to support you for said office; and their wishes and feelings regarding your proposed candidacy is no doubt shared by many more of your fellow democrats, whom they had no oppertunity to consult.

Hoping for an early and affirmative reply, we remain most respectfully your friends.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 7th, 1884.

The power of Mr. Randall as a leader was again tested in the House on Tuesday when the republicans with no small number of democrats attempted to substitute the minority for the majority report on the appropriations for fortifications and defences. The report of the minority was an amendment providing for the expenditure of some $3, 000,000 in a continuance of the miserable jobbery we have already had in the war vessels turned out by John Roach—a work that has cost us $5,000,000 or more, and for which there was never a more worthless appropriation of the people's money. Mr. Randall boldly took this bull by the horns, showing up the complicity of Chandler and others in the gigantic scheme to rob the Government, and demonstrating the folly of going on and repeating the failures that haye already cost us so much. The House, by a vote of 147 to 90 took Mr. Randall's views of the business and rejected Mr. Bill Chandler's overtures.

The American people seem to take it for granted that for the summer months at least, the President is justified in abdicating his power and leaying the Goyernment to take care of itself. Of all the line of Presidents, from Washington down to the nineteenth, Grant was the first chief magistrate who had ever taken a summer junketing. Mr. Lincoln in the last summer of his life slept occasionally out at the Soldier's Home, but in his four years' administration, he never left Washington. Nor was it particularly because of the existence of war and the supervision of military affairs that detained him, because these duties could as well have been performed from any other headquarters, but Mr. Lincoln would not establish the precedent of leaving the Capital and the duties of his high position, simply because of the climate and its malarius accompaniments. Yet the Washington of to-day is infinitely more healthful than it was then, and the nerology of the White House shows but two Presidential demises—that of Harrison who was killed, not by malaria but by the office-hunters, and that of Taylor who ate too heartily of ice cream that was flayored with the same villainous vanilla that afterward poisoned Mr. Buchanan and others at the National Hotel, and is now slaughtering the youth and beauty of our land. Death of Allan Pinkerton.

A Brief Sketch of the Career of the Great Detective and His Agency.

CHICAGO, July 1.—Allan Pinkerton, the well-known detective, died this afternoon.

The illness which caused the death of Allan Pinkerton was an illness of long standing. Mr. Pinkerton, who was the son of a small tradesman, was born in Glasgow in 1819, married young and left immediately for the western hemisphere. He landed in Canada, where he and his wife endured many privations. He shortly moved to the neighborhood of Dundee, Ill., where he purchased a small farm. Pinkerton was twenty-eight years of age, and it was then that he made his first detective ventures. Horse thieves were on the rampage in those days and Allan, after having been successful in hunting down a rascal who had stolen one of the horses, was employed by neighbors until his reputation as a detective reached the adjoining counties. He gained a more widespred reputation by hunting down forgers of checks of the Milwaukee Fire and Marine Insurance Company [now Mitchell's bank]. The merchants of the country employed him to run down the other forgers. He was then invited to Chicago and was made deputy sheriff of Cook county in 1849, and in the same year Pinkerton received the appointment as special agent of the treasury under Secretary Guthrie. In this, and also in the position of mail agent, he distinguished himself by numerous brilliant pieces of detective work. The feat which gave him a nationai reputation was to conduct Abraham Lincoln safely through Baltimore to the inauguration in Washington. During the war Pinkerton entered the secret service of the government, and was the trusted agent of Lincoln, Stanton, Mc Clellan, Halleck, McDowell, Sherman and Grant. The first established agency was begun in Chicago in 1853. Beginning with a handful of trusted employes, Pinkerton steadily increased his business until there are now "Pinkerton Agencies" in the principal cities of the Union, employing thousands of men and women in every state of the Union. The various agencies at present employ about 200 first-class detectives, men and women, whose pay ranges from $5 a day to $5,000 per year. The exposures of the Mollie Maguire gang, the arrest and conviction of Augustus Stuart Byron and of a young man claiming to be a nephew of Admiral Napier, and other achievements are well known and have served to stamp with unquestioned reputation and ability the great detective and his well conducted agency.

—We daily read of defaulting clerks and cashiers, of murder and robbery, of human beings sinking into paupers' and drunkards' graves. This is the dark side of humanity. The devil has his revivals and harvests as well as the good Being. It makes the heart of man sad to behold this picture of evil and darkness, and doubly so to see many under the same baleful influences, and on the same downward course. However, it is cheerful to look on the bright side, to behold the thousands of honest clerks, honest cashiers, the thousands who do not murder and rob, the thousands who do not occupy dishonored graves, and the millions who belong to the christian church. This is the good Being's revival. Has it ever entered into the heart of man why so many are on the dark side of life? If such men's history were known, the cause of their downfall in ninety-nine caces out of every hundred, could be traced to their Youth. There was their proper training neglected, associations were formed which were bad, perhaps the first cent stolen, the first drink taken, parents careless and not chiding them properly, and giving them license to do almost as they please; and when character is gone, honor lost, the system a wreck mentally and physically, the error of parents is seen, but too late.—Ex.

Four Children Burned to Death.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 30.—A special from Youngstown, Ohio. says: Brier Hill, a suburb of this city, was the scene last night of a horrible affair. Four children of Mrs. Ann Murphy retired to bed about nine o'clock, and about eleven o'clock smoke and flames were discovered issuing from their bed room window. Neighbors came to the rescue and soon put out the fire, but not before three of the children, boys aged respectively five, seven and nine years were so badly burned that the flesh peeled off their bones and they died within an hour. The fourth and eldest child jumped from the second story window and escaped with slight burns. Mr. Murphy says that there was no fire or light in the room. It is supposed that an Italian neighbor playfully threw a lighted stump of a cigar in at the children when retiring.

—LAY THEM AWAY. We mean the horrible, nauseous worm-seed compounds called worm syrups and vermifuges; many of them are as worthless as as they are obnoxious. They have outlived their usefulness. People do not want them since McDonald's Celebrated Worm Powders, so easy and pleasant to take, can be had from any dealer. Everyone who has tried them says they are the nicest and best vermifuge ever discovered. Their children take them and never know a medicine is being administered. Any case of failure to cause expulsion when worms exist the money promptly refunded in every instance.

—Rev. Herald wishes to inform the public through these columns that he will open a term of summer school in this town after harvest. A liberal patronage respectfully solicited.

—That lively and active democrat, Mr. S. K. Faust, of Miles township, candidate for sheriff, dropped in the other day and ordered his tickets for the coming delegate election.

—Sam. Weiser, Jr., nursed one of his fingers last week, having received a cut in it. If Sam don't keep his fingers from sharp edges, he won't have many of those useful members left.

—We are full of job work at present. But bring in your orders and we will accomodate you all. We have received some new and elegant styles of job type and will do your work satisfactorily.

—There was considerable talk about Telephone in town. An agent of the Bell Telephone Company was here to raise a sufficent member of subscribers, but we have not heard of his success.

—In a letter from E. W. Mauck, who is working at Copenhagen, New York, we see that he likes that place but not good enough to stay. He expects to return home some time this summer.

—THE Great Zingari Toothache Drops, for toothache and neuralgia, have no equal. Only costs 15 cents at any drug store. Warranted. Sold by J. Eisenhuth, Millheim, Pa.

—No person thought it was any to warm the last few days. There was a complete change in the atmosphere on Sunday, owing to recent hailstorms in the neighborhood.

—The band had its annual election of officers last Monday evening which resulted in the re-election of last year's president and treasurer and the election of H. J. Kurzenknabe, as secretary.

—Rev. Aurand, who in former years was the pastor of the Rebersburg Luth. charge, has again been called to take said charge and having accepted the call, moved to Rebersburg a few weeks ago.

—Persons who are fond of ice cream on warm evenings, should remember that Mrs. Jacob Eisenhuth is an expert in the manufacture of the same and always furnishes the best to her customers. Give her a call.

—A party of ladies and gentlemen from our sister town, Aaronsburg, went through Millheim the other evening, all mounted on horseback. They are elegant riders and seem to be well acquainted with the equestrain art.

—A new and good fife has been procured by some of our young men for compaign purposes and active preparations are going on to have good marshall music by an expert drum corps. Right, let us hear from you; the time has come to strike up.

—Mrs. Kauffman and daughter, of Fishers' Ferry, are sojourning with Mrs. E. H. Long, at this place. They are well pleased with Millheim, and think of frequently repeating their visit to our burg. Their friends will always be glad to see them.

—The organ works of Daniel F. Beatty, at Washington, N. J., which were embarrassed on account of Beatty's failure, are now in charge of a stock company, who will run the works on a more economical plan and pay D. F. Beatty a salary for the use of his name.

—The net proceeds of the festival of the U. B. "All Workers Society," which was held in the town hall on the fourth of July, amount to the nice sum of $71.70. It affords us pleasure to state that our people showed a fraternal spirit and patronized the occasion liberally.

70 ACRE FARM FOR SALE.—Benjamin and John J. Orndorf, administrators of the estate of the late John Orndorf, will offer the farm of the decedent, situate in Haines township, at Orphans' Court Sale, on Saturday, August 2nd, 1884. Good buildings, &c. on the premises. See bills.

—Mr. & Mrs. A. Walter left on Monday for Philadelphia. Mrs. W. has at times been quite ill during the last few weeks and expects to undergo a thorough medical treatment by skilled physicians in the Quaker city. We earnestly hope the trip will prove beneficial to her impaired health.

—At an election held in the U. B. Sunday School, on June 28th, 1884, the following officers were chosen for the ensuing term: Superintendent, A. R. Alexander; Asst. Superintendent, F. D. Luse; Secretary, Geo. W. Harter; Librarians, Sadie Eisenhuth, Mary Lose; Treasurer, Mrs. Phœbe Alexander.

—Mr. John Frank, of Penn township, handed us four heads of wheat the other day, which are fine specimens of the kind he raises and for fullness and weight beat anything we have seen for some time in that line. Persons who take interest in agricultural affairs can examine them at this office.

MUSIC SCHOOL.—The 25th session of six weeks will begin in the Musical College, at Freeburg, Pa., on Tuesday morning, July 29th. A grand opportunity for the training of young ladies. For information and circulars, address,
F. C. MOYER,
Musical Director.

—The Cholera in France is spreading and the death rate is largely on the increase. The total number of deaths from the first appearance of the disease at Toulon up to the present is 154, and the number of deaths in other places of that country is causing a regular panic. The migration to the sea side is unexampled.

—Mr. Frank Rupp, a son of Geo. Rupp, of Aaronsburg was walking around on the scaffold of Frank Weavers's new house and tramping on a loose board was thrown down. He was very badly injured about the head and face and his physicians say it will be some time before he will be able to be about again.

ACCIDENT.—One last Thursday evening Mrs. Messini, an old lady from Lewisburg, while on a visit to friends in this place, crossed Main street and by an unfortunate misstep broke her limb right above the ankle. She was taken to Mr. Michael Ulrich's house and medical aid was summoned. She is doing very well under the circumstances.

—Henry Miller, who had been to Royer's Ford near Reading, to work in a stove manufactory is back again. He reports things "pretty hot" down there, and says the striking Union moulders of that factory will not allow any non-Union moulder to take their place, driving them away by violence and even threats of life. No wonder Hen' came home.

ACCIDENT.—A little boy of Benjamin Limbert, residing in Gregg township, about 3½ miles west of Madisonburg, entered his father's stable last Monday evening and walking up close to a young horse, received a severe kick above his left eye, rendering him unconscious for a time and producing a three-inch gash in his forehead. The attending physician thinks there is hope for recovery.

—The new photograph building of Geo. Buck & Bro., on North street is now completed and fitted up in the best order. It has every convenience and improvement necessary to do a large and profitable business, and with such advantages they can insure satisfactory work in every case and will be pleased to receive orders from the public of town and the surrounding country.

—Considerable fault was found with Slugger Sullivan the other day for getting drunk and not being able to fill his appointment of sparring with Mitchell. A $14,000 house was ready to witness the combat, but they went away disappointed and Sullivan and Mitchell divided and pocketed the spoils. Served them right. People who patronize exhibitions of that kind, help to promote brutality as well as general mischief and deviltry.

—Mr. W. B. DeLong, of Jersey Shore, Pa., is at present stopping at the Millheim Hotel, and is taking orders for the fall delivery of the Rochester nursery stock. He delivers everything at the residence of the purchaser and also makes a specialty of flowers and ornamental trees. This being the first of a series of trips which he expects to continue for four years he wishes by honest dealing to merit a share of the public patronage. 3t

—On the second page of this week's JOURNAL appears a letter signed by some of our most prominent citizens in the borough and township, requesting our townsman, Mr. A. Walter, to allow his name to be used as a candidate for legislature. Said letter plainly shows that the gentleman enjoys the high esteem of his friends and neighbors and there is not the least of doubt but that the contents of the letter will meet with a ready indorsment from many voters all over the county.

—ONE DOSE of McDonald's Great Blood Purifier or Sarsaparillian Alterative is guaranteed to contain more alterative properties, more truly remedial power than three doses of any other known alterative or blood purifier. Many other remedies are good enough in their way, only that you are compelled to buy a gallon of medicine to get a pint of remedy; the manufacturers having sacrificed strength and usefulness to palatability and profit. McDonald's Blood Purifier is put up in seventy-five cent bottles containing as much as most dollar bottles of other makes. Dissatisfied buyers can have their money refunded.

Come and derive the benefits given you at D. S. Kauffman & Co's Bargain Store on Main street, Millheim, Pa.

—Tuesday's Harrisburg Patriot has the following concerning the fire company which had been attending the great celebration at Bellefonte on the 4th:

The Paxton Steam Fire Engine Company was the first to arrive home Saturday afternoon from Bellefonte. Because of the close connection to be made at Tyrone on the Pennsylvania railroad, the Paxton boys were obliged to leave Bellefonte at 7.20 on Saturday morning, arriving here early in the afternoon, and the entire company were lavish in praising the citizens of Bellefonte for their uniform courtesy and hospitality. The boys were quartered at the Garman house on Thursday night and on the day following were banqueted at the fair grounds, which was followed by music and dancing. Mr. J. M. Lyne, one of the Paxton members, was honored by the appointment of aid to the chief marshall. The Hummelstown band which accompanied the No. 6 gave entire satisfaction.

—Mr. John Kerstetter, Jr., still makes a business of doing special jobs at carpentry. John is really an expert at the business and has large experince, both in making out plans, specifications and drawings, as well as a practical workman. People who entrust their work into his hands can safely rely on having it done in best style at the lowest prices. tf

THE FOURTH OF JULY AT MILLHEIM.—The Fourth was observed in a general and moderate way in this borough. The citizens were treated to a midnight serenade the night before, consisting of choice selections, which were wafted on the balmy air by our band, and explosions of fire crackers and other missiles, which was kept up for about an hour. The several church bells of Aaronsburg could be distinctly heard for a long time. Early in the morning of the fourth the little boy was on hand to inaugurate the day by firing crackers. Several residences and business places were handsomely decorated with evergreens and flags. About 9 o'clock in the forenoon the Brush Valley band, accompanied by their teacher, Prof. J. H. Feehrer put in their appearance and rendered some fine music. After dinner both bands united and marched through the streets in dress parade, which presented a very imposing sight. Everybody enjoyed their excellent performance, both of drill and music. The usual Fourth of July thunder shower came off at about four o'clock and in a short time emptied the streets of pedestrians and vehicles. Owing to the busy hay making season the country folks were thinly represented during the day and town was comparatively quiet. In the evening the sky was clear again and the glass ball shooting of Mr. S. K. Sobers was witnessed by a good many people. Mr. S. made an exceedingly good record and exhibited considerable skill of marksmanship. About that time people from the surrounding country came in to see the baloon ascension and display of fireworks in front of the First National Hotel, which lasted for several hours and formed the most pleasant feature of the day. With a few trifling exceptions the order and conduct were very good and the general feeling was one of good will and pleasure.

Madisonburg Scraps.

Benjamin Roush has built a piece to his stable.

The summer house of Israel Vonada of Gregg township was invaded by tramps the other night. They helped themselves to some coffee, bread and took a razor, mug and strap along.

Mr. John Lose, of Millheim, is painting John B. Shafer's porch and kitchen.

Miss Mazie Reber, cook at the Madisonburg hotel, has returned from her trip down the country.

David Shafer's family has returned from the West and are occupying rooms with H. R. Fiedler.

Reuben says he don't care if William W. does spend an evening with F. S., but he don't like to find the cows and pigs in the wheatfield in the morning. William, shut the gate.

The farmers around here are about done making hay. The crop was extra good this season.

Levi Fullmer has gone to Jersey Shore, where he is harvesting.

The fourth was very quiet in our town, the ringing of the bell of the Reformed church, a few fire crackers and Lewis W's music on the mouth organ comprising the celebration.

A heavy hail storm visited this section of the country on the 4th.

SHIN BONE.

Aaronsburg Bits.

Woodward boys frequently pay Aaronsburg a visit.

Charlie, how about the tan path at the east end of town?

Miss Lizzie Shoemaker from Kansas spent a few weeks in this place.

Dr. P. T. Musser has erected a new manure shed on his premises in town.

Mr. Hol. Crouse is opening school in this place on the 21st of this month.

The foundation walls of the Reformed church are now finished and ready for the brick work.

Clayton and Rollin Wyle have gone to Union county, to work there thruogh haying and harvest.

Mr. Allison Stover has started a singing school at Wolfe's school house. Now boys and girls, go and learn to sing.

Painters and plasterers were busy working at Frank Weaver's new house at this place and it looks as if he was getting one of the prettiest homes in town. BRACE & CO.

—IT WENT AROUND AMONG THE NEIGHBORS. Mr. Levi Stahl, merchant and postmaster at Fostoria, Pa., writes:

Mr. J. A. McDonald, Reedsville Pa.

Dear Sir:—Some time ago I had a severe attack of chronic diarrhœa. Could obtain no relief. A friend gave me a part of a bottle of your Curtis' Camelite Cordial, and a few doses entirely cured me. The balance of the bottle went around among the neighbors. Since that I have written to New York and Philadelphia for the medicine but could not procure it. I traced up the bottle we had and found it was purchased of Mr. Jacob Ocwan, merchant in Altoona, and from him obtained your address. Please forward me one dozen bottles by express at once, as I do not wish to be without it in my family and wish to sell it in my store."

Single bottle Curtis' Carmelite Cordial guaranteed to cure any case cholera, dysentery, diarrhoea, cramps, pains, and all irritation of the bowels incident to change of climate, diet or water.

Very truly your friends,

DINGES, VONADA & CO

Undressing Little Ned.

'Where is 'Whisky Bill,' who used to drive that old white horse in front of a twenty-five cent express wagon ?' repeated the man,in tones of surprise.

'Yes.'

'Well, now it's a curious case,' he slowly continued. 'We all thought he'd gone to the dogs for sure, for he was drinking a pint of whisky a day, but a few months ago he braced right up, stopped drinking, and now I hear he's in good business,and saving money. It beats all, for the last time I saw him he seemed underground.'

When you go home at night and find that all is well with your own flesh and blood, do you go to sleep reasoning that the rest of the world must take care for itself ? Do you ever shut your eyes and call upon the hundreds of faces you have met during the day, and wonder if the paleness of death will cover any of them before the morrow ? When you have once been attracted to a face, even if it be a stranger's, do you let it drop from memory with your dreams, or do you call it up again as night comes down, and hope it may loose none of its brightness in the whirling mists of time ?

'So, 'Whiskey Bill' was hunted down. An inquiry here and there finally traced him to a little brown cottage on a by-street. He sat on the step in the twilight, a burly, broad shouldered man of fifty, and in the house three or four children gathered around the lamp to look over a picture book.

'Yes, they used to call me 'Whisky Bill' down town,' he replied, as he moved along and made room; 'but it is weeks since I heard that name. No wonder they think me dead, for I've not set eyes on the old crowd for months, and I don't want to for months to come.

'They tell me you have quit drinking. One could see that by your face.'

'I hope so. I haven't touched a drop since February. Before that I was half drunk, day and day out, and more of a brute than a man. I don't mind saying that my wife's death set me to thinking, but I didn't stop my liquor. God forgive me, but I was drunk when she died, half drunk at the grave, and I meant to go on a regular spree that night. I was low down, sir, but I was not better than a brute those days.'

'And so you left your motherless children at home and went out and got drunk ?'

'No, I said I meant to, but I didn't. The poor things were crying all day, and after coming home from the burial I thought to get 'em tucked away in bed before I went out. Drunk or sober, I never struck one of 'em a blow, and they never ran from me when I staggered home. There's four of 'em in there, and the youngest isn't quite four years yet. I got the older ones in bed all right, and then came little Ned. He had cried himself to sleep, and he called for mother as soon as I woke him. Until that night I had never had that boy on my knee,to say nothing of putting him to bed, and you can guess these big fingers made slow work with the hooks and buttons. *E*very minute he kept saying mother didn't do that way, and the big children were hiding their heads under the quilts to drown their sobs. When I had his clothes off and his night-gown on, I was ashamed and put him down,and when the oldest saw tears in my eyes and jumped out of bed to put her arms around my neck I dropped the name of 'Whisky Bill' right then and forever.'

'And little Ned.'

'Mebbe I'd have weakened but for him,' replied the man as he wiped his eyes. 'After I got the child's night-gown on, what did he do but kneel right down beside me and wait for me to say the Lord's Prayer to him ! Why, sir,you might have knocked me down with a feather ! There I was, mother and father to him, and I couldn't say four words of that prayer to save my life! He waited and waited for me to begin, as his mother always had, and the big children were waiting, and when I took him in my arms and kissed him, I called upon Heaven that my life should change from that hour. And so it did, sir, and I've been trying hard to lead a sober, honest life. God helping me,no one shall call me 'Whisky Bill' again.'

The four children, little Ned in his night-gown, came out for a good night kiss, and the boy cuddled in his father's arms for a moment and said :

'Good-night, pa—good-night everybody in the world—good-night, ma, up in Heaven—and don't put out the light 'till we get to sleep.—M. Quad.

In some places a broken-down front gate, produced in court, furnishes all the evidence a pretty girl needs to insure a favorable verdict in a breach of promise suit.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth ? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

AN EXTRAORDINARY OFFER.

To All Wanting Employment.

We want Live, Energetic an Capable Agents in every county in the United States and Canada, to sell a patent article of great merit, ON ITS MERITS. An article having a large sale, paying over 100 per cent. profit, having no competition, and on which the agent is protected in the exclusive sale by a deed given for each and every county he may secure from us. With all these advantages to our agents, and the fact that it is an article that can be sold to every houseowner, it might not be necessary to make an "EXTRAORDINARY OFFER" to secure good agents at once, but we have concluded to make it to show, not only our confidence in the merits of our invention, but in its salability by any agent that will handle it with energy. Our agents now at work are making from $150 to $300 a month clear, and this fact makes it safe for us to make our offer to all who are out of employment. Any agent that will give our business a thirty days' trial and fail to clear at least $100 in this time, ABOVE ALL EXPENSES can return all goods unsold to us and we will refund the money paid for them. Any agent or General Agent who would like ten or more counties and work them through sub-agents for ninety days, and fail to clear at least $750 ABOVE ALL EXPENSES, can return all unsold and get their money back. No other employer of agents ever dared to make such offers, nor would we if we did not know that we have agents now making more that double the amount we guarranteed, and but two sales a day wouldgive a profit of over $125 a month, and that one of our agents took eighteen orders in one day. Our large descriptive circulars explain our offer fully, and these we wish to send to every one out of employment who will send us three one-cent stamps for postage Send at once and secure the agency in time for the boom,and go to work on the terms named in our extraordinary offer. We would like to have the address of all the agents, sewing machine solicitors and carpenters in the country, and ask any reader of this paper who reads this offer,to send us at once the name and address of all such they know. Address at once, or you will loose the best chance ever offered to those out of employment to make money.

DOWNS' ELIXIR.

N. H. DOWNS'

Vegetable Balsamic

ELIXIR

For the cure of

Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Asthma, Pleurisy, Hoarseness, Influenza, Spitting Blood, Bronchitis, and all diseases of the Throat, Chest, and Lungs. In all cases where this Elixir is used its efficacy is at once manifested, convincing the most incredulous that is not incurable, if properly attended to.—At its commencement it is but a slight irritation of the membrane which covers the Lungs; then an inflamation, when the cough is rather dry, local fever,and the pulse more frequent,the cheeks flushed and chills more common. This Elixir in curing the above complaints, operates so as to remove all morbid irritations and inflamation from the lungs to the surface, and finally expel them from the system. It facilitates expectoration.

It heals the ulcerated surfaces and relieves the cough and makes the breathing easy. It supports the strength and at the same time reduces the fever. It is free from strong opiate and astringent articles, which are of so drying a nature as to be in great danger of destroying the patient; whereas this medicine never dries or stops the cough, but, by removing the cause, consequently, when the cough is cured the patient is well. Send address for pamphlet giving full directions, free.

Price 35 cts., 50 cts., and $1.00 per bottle.

DR. JOHN BULL'S

Smith's Tonic Syrup

FEVER and AGUE

Or CHILLS and FEVER,

AND ALL MALARIAL DISEASES.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southern country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

BULL'S SARSAPARILLA is the old and reliable remedy for impurities of the blood and Scrofulous affections—the King of Blood Purifiers.

DR. JOHN BULL'S VEGETABLE WORM DESTROYER is prepared in the form of candy drops, attractive to the sight and pleasant to the taste.
